

Audience: School leaders, teachers, SENCOs, HLTAs, Teaching Assistants, Governors

Focus: This course will teach leaders, teachers and teaching assistants how to teach handwriting.

Cost: £300 (Plus VAT)

All it takes is a:

- one hour twilight training session for all staff including support staff,
- a ten minute handwriting lesson in every class for one month,
- further lessons according to your handwriting policy.

In order to support your transformation, following the twilight session you will need;

- all staff to learn how to write using the school handwriting,
- all staff to model the handwriting every time they write,
- a sample of your school's handwriting prominently displayed in every classroom and work area,
- an example sent home to parents in your newsletter.

It is highly recommended that you;

- use a font that is the same as your handwriting for the majority of displays, printing, worksheets and any work on the screen.

Governors are very welcome to attend.

Jan Gough has been the substantive headteacher of a primary school and nursery and the interim head of two schools. As a senior manager with a local authority she has been the adviser for schools in special measures. She has worked intensively with these schools to raise standards and expectations, as a result many of those schools have been removed from special measures as good schools and most with leadership and management judged as good.
